U.S. Has yet to Notify 21.5 Million Data Breach Victims: Officials

(Reuters) – Two months after discovering that sensitive personal information on 21.5 million Americans was compromised in a hack of government databanks, none of those affected has been officially notified, government officials said on Tuesday. The officials from multiple agencies, who are familiar with an investigation into the breach, said the Office of Personnel Management (OPM), which oversaw the data, is working with other agencies to set up a system to inform the victims. One official at OPM, who declined to be identified, said that because of the complicated nature of the data and the fact that government employees and contractors often move among different agencies, it would be weeks before a mechanism was in place. The official said the government was trying to establish a centralized system rather than leave the notification to separate agencies. OPM is expected to hire an outside contractor but has not yet sought bids for the work.

Significant Events – International

Stampede Kills at Least 27 at Hindu Riverside Festival in India

(CNN) – At least 27 people, mostly women, died in a stampede at a riverside religious festival in southern India, a senior official said. More than 40 people were injured in the crush that occurred on Tuesday morning in Rajahmundry, a major city in the southern Indian state of Andhra Pradesh. The festival, called Pushkaram or Pushkaralu in the Telugu language, is a 12-day Hindu bathing festival dedicated to river worship. Arun Kumar, the chief of the district where the stampede took place, said there were "inadequate arrangements" for the crowds of worshippers surging at a river bank for a holy dip. There was a sudden rush of some 100,000 pilgrims at one bank that was equipped to handle only a third of them, he said.

South Korea Indicts 63 Over Probe on Defense Procurement

(AP) – South Korean prosecutors said Wednesday that they had indicted dozens of people, including two former navy chiefs of staff, over an investigation into alleged corruption associated with numerous defense procurement projects. Sixty-three people face charges of accepting bribes, fabricating official documents or leaking military secrets, senior prosecutor Kim Ki-dong told a televised news conference. The accused include 10 current or former military generals, a former vice minister, businessmen and brokers, according to Kim and the Defense Ministry. Kim said they were involved in projects to supply the military with body armor, rifles and various equipment loaded at navy ships. A joint government investigative team has been probing defense procurement projects since November. Kim said the lack of an effective supervising system on defense procurement projects was to blame for the alleged corruption.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

An upper level trough over Northern California will weaken over the next several days and result in a warming trend across the interior. Coastal areas will continue to see night and morning stratus as thermal low pressure strengthens near the coast and northerly winds increase offshore.

Medford Weather:

The upper level trough will shift eastern into the Northern Rockies and Great Basin this morning allowing high pressure ridging over the eastern Pacific Ocean to nudge into the Pacific Northwest. For inland areas, today is expected to be the first day with no measurable precipitation in the forecast area since July 2nd. A wave of summer heat will build across the area for the rest of the week through the weekend, with a cool down anticipated next week. An upper level low moving into the Northern Rockies Friday will bring some threat of showers and thunderstorms to southeastern sections of the area Friday through Sunday.

Reno Weather:

A slow warming trend this week will bring afternoon temperatures to near normal by Friday. A low pressure system from the Pacific Northwest increases the chances for thunderstorms starting Friday, and there is potential for a cooler and wetter weather pattern for the start of next week.

San Francisco Weather:

Aside from patchy coastal drizzle in the overnight and early morning hours, dry weather conditions will prevail across the region through late week. Cooler temperatures return for the weekend along with a slight chance of precipitation Sunday into Monday as mid-level moisture approaches from Southern California.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Warm and dry through Friday. Cooler weather expected this weekend with precipitation possible early next week.

Hanford Weather:

A few isolated afternoon showers and thunderstorms will be possible along the Sierra Crest through Friday. Otherwise, mostly sunny skies will prevail with a slight warming trend. There is potential for tropical moisture arriving over the weekend and the threat of showers and thunderstorms.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Areas of night through morning low clouds and fog will continue through the week. Temperatures will be around normal and will not change much from day to day. Monsoonal moisture will bring a slight chance of thunderstorms to the area this weekend, along with warmer temperatures.

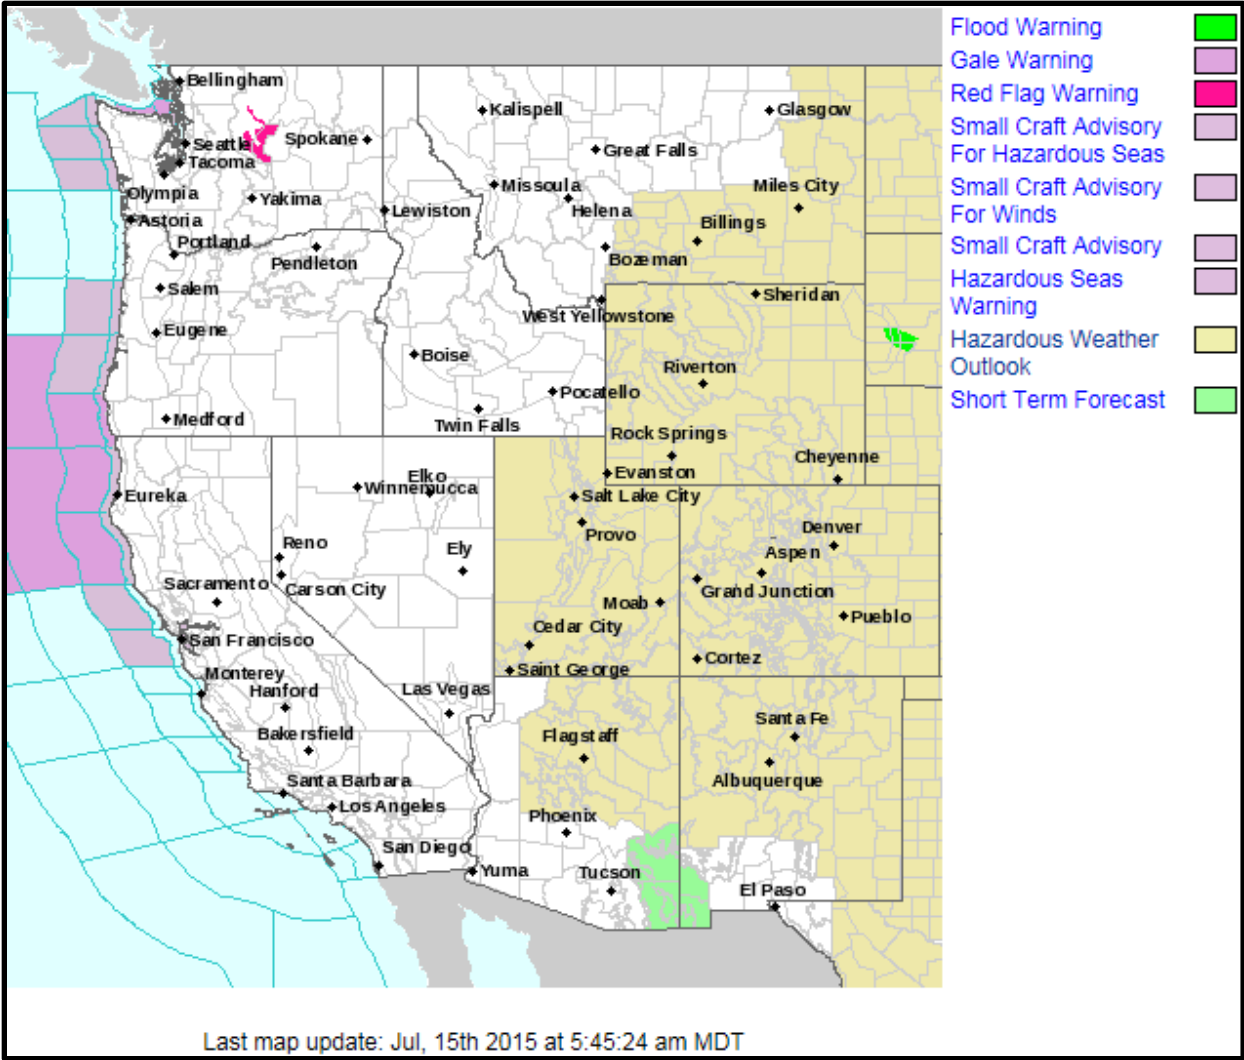

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Seasonally cool weather will prevail across Southern California through Thursday under a low pressure trough aloft. Low clouds will develop each night and move inland before burning off by late morning, and gusty westerly winds will develop late each day through late night over the mountains and deserts. The region will become more humid into the weekend as monsoonal moisture increases from the south, along with a chance of showers and thunderstorms, especially over the mountains and deserts.

Southeast California Weather:

Mostly dry conditions will continue for the lower desert elevations with afternoon showers. By Friday, moisture levels will ramp up significantly and bring in cloudiness and cooler temperatures, along with a good chance for rain showers and thunderstorms over the weekend.
